Progress Seen at Varina Through

Physical and Educational Aspects

1964

From the time the first bell rings in the morning until the buzzer marks the end of the last quarter of a ball game, the life of Varina goes on and is presented to you in the form of the 1964 Varinian. Through pictures, words, and the memories which it brings you and which only you as a student of the school can understand, the staff has tried to depict the achievements both physical and mental of the school and her students. Each phase of classroom curriculum and each activity represent the progress of everyone working together. For as the body cannot function properly without each member, or as the whole is equal to the sum of its parts, so is it true that without the cooperation and the participation of each student none can gain as much in intelligence or experience. Therefore, we take you through classrooms, clubs, and athletics — through the beginning for the seventh graders to the graduation into a new and exciting world for the Seniors — through Varina and thus through your way of life.

Dedication

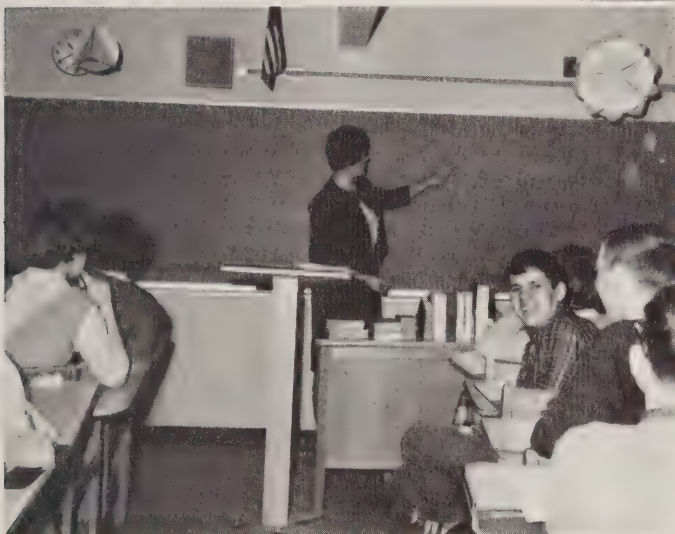

Mrs. Charlotte O'Brien

A short association of two years with Varina High School has proven adequate time to endear Mrs. O'Brien to her students. Through her constant challenges in learning, English and American Literature have come alive for her Senior and Junior classes and grammar has moved within the realm of comprehension. The Senior Class is especially grateful for her aid to us as a sponsor. Her leadership and creativity in the Paradox room, her guidance through the senior play, and her sincere interest in our every activity from class room to personal problems have been indispensable to us. As we move on from this stage of our lives we feel it appropriate to show our gratitude to one who has been such a vital factor to our progress. Thus, we the Senior Class hereby dedicate the 1964 Varinian to Mrs. Charlotte W. O'Brien.

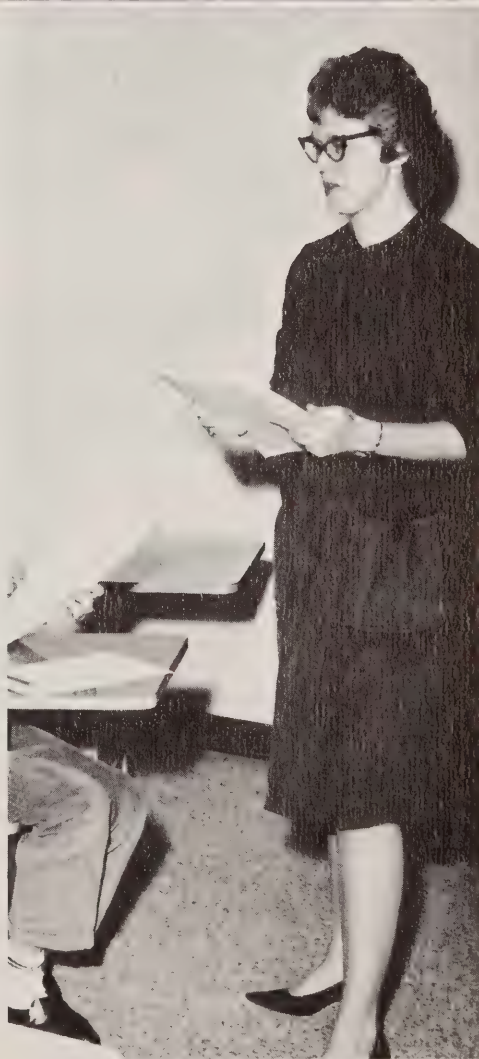

RIGHT: A rare moment at her desk finds Mrs. O'Brien still busy, discussing World Literature with senior Craig Ormand. For this class she sacrifices her time before and after school hours.

BELOW: The blackboard is a vital tool of illustration and Mrs. O'Brien uses it in a Junior English class to explain the mysteries of elliptical construction. Prominent in the picture is the podium which, as any student will tell you, is the most likely place to see her during the day.

It is futile to go to J-6 sixth period in hopes of holding a conference with Mrs. O'Brien for she spends that period and sometimes till dark working on the school literary publication, the Paradox. Here with Jane Amory she is diverted for a moment to instruct another student.

Probably one of the reasons that students enjoy Senior English is that even handing out papers can prove amusing.

We Move Ahead in . . .

Education . . .

Opportunities for learning are always available to Varina students, and each day they add a little more to their store of knowledge. Many modern facilities are at their disposal to help in this learning process. Teachers are able to acquire filmstrips, maps, records and reference books from the library to use along with customary textbooks. Of course the students are also able to go to this indispensable center of learning where each year many new books are added. Here they can do research to enlighten themselves on any subject imaginable or broaden themselves culturally.

Appearance . . .

To keep its reputation as a forward looking school that creates a better atmosphere for study, Varina has made many additions to her physical appearance. In contrast to the school year of 1962-63, the landscape now has grass, shrubs, and trees. In an effort to keep out the driving wind and rain, a shield has been put up on part of the walk.

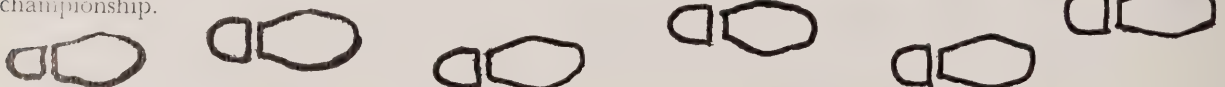

Spirit . . .

Shouts of encouragement from the stands, or at a pep rally, and the driving determination to win a contest of physical or mental skill for Varina are in essence the expression of one thought — this being, "Varina is best and we'll keep her that way."

Achievements . . .

A goal toward which to work always makes things easier and Varinians often achieve their noble aims, whether in Forensics, sports, or classes. Here Mr. Hensley, assistant principal, passes out tie-tacs, symbols of the Varina-won football championship.

*Administration
and Faculty*

Administration

An interested administration makes for cooperative students. A prime example of this can be found in the spacious administration building at Varina High School. The offices of Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Hensley, though forbidding to rule-breakers, often provide the important "O.K." for class and club projects. The student-body couldn't get along without secretary Mrs. Gaulding and Mrs. Snelson who ably handles the financial affairs of the school and its organizations. Miss Buccieri and Mr. Slone with the aid of Secretary Mrs. Yahley, make school-life easier by solving the scheduling and learning problems that arise.

Guides Student Body

A heavy schedule affords Mr. Gibbs little time for chats such as this one with his secretary Mrs. Gaulding.

Students feel certain that their problems will be promptly taken care of by Miss Buccieri and Secretary Mrs. Yahley.

Mrs. Gaulding and Mrs. Snelson are, as usual, hard at work but anxious to help when needed.

LEFT: Ready to offer timely advice on classes or future college plans is Mr. Carl Slone who divides his day between guidance office and classroom.

One of the many note-worthy events for the seniors was the arrival of long-awaited Sr. pictures. Here Cheryl Pierce shows hers to Carol Allen.

All the things that go along with the coveted title of Senior began for the Class of '64 in the first week of school when Senior portraits were made. Later, at a Senior Class meeting, officers were elected and the students began their year doing things democratically and deciding their activities as a class. December marked the arrival of pictures and after exams and unforgettable term papers in January, the Seniors took a deserved rest at their an-

This month was noted for its many events for it was then that announcements for graduation and cards were ordered and the Seniors participated in rehearsals for the class play "All Shook Up" which was presented under the direction of Mrs. O'Brien in March. At the end of their studies in June the class took a day off for a picnic to relax and enjoy themselves together for the last time as the Senior Class of Varina High School.

Academics

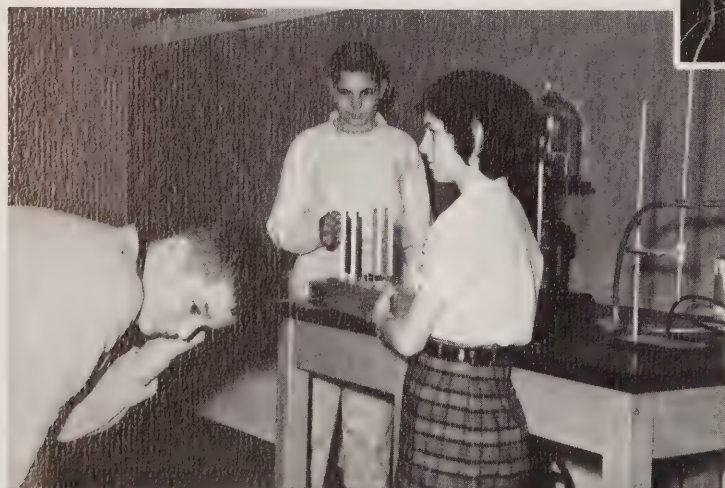

Hypothesis Proven by Trial and Error

RIGHT: Mrs. Evenson and Jimmy Geer observe the experiment set up in chemistry class. Experiment to prove or disprove is the main objective of any chemistry student and pupils in this class find themselves deeply engrossed in experiments dealing with carbon, hydrogen and oxygen.

LEFT: It takes two, Debbie Meade and Frances Nelson, to do the delicate job of dissecting a crayfish. But with this experience comes the knowledge of how the different body systems function. The biology classes also work with earthworms and frogs.

RIGHT: Physics is a course students look forward to as a challenge when they become Juniors or Seniors. Earl Snelson, Roy Dowdy and Jeff Harton find that experiments in physics help them to prove that their equations are in balance.

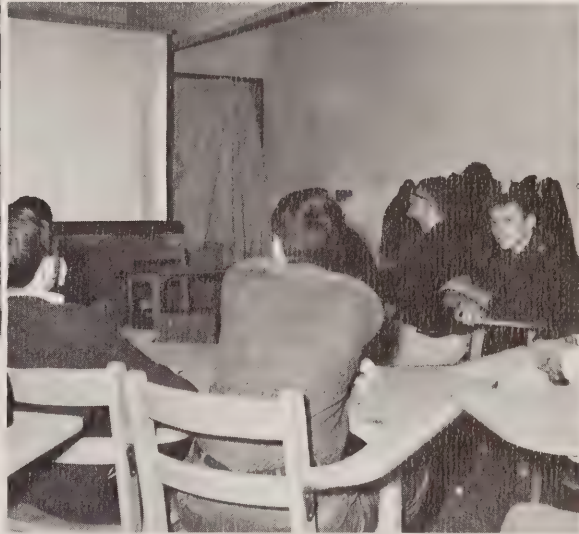

LEFT: Eugene Wilkerson with assistants Margaret Walton and Myrchas Glenn is able to really hear sound transmitted through a ruler. Many laws are learned in 8th grade science but no one believes until an actual experiment removes doubt.

Language Classes Challenge Students

LEFT: Just before class begins, Lydia Powers studies her vocabulary words in Spanish just in case of a pop quiz. Joe Meredith and Barbara Grubbs seem quite confident that they are prepared.

RIGHT: France comes alive as French students get prepared to view a movie on the customs of the French. Mrs. Weiss, the instructor, believes a better understanding of the country gives insight into the language.

ABOVE: Something seems to be drawing the attention of Seniors Craig Ormand (seated), Jesse Holman, Ray Lassiter, Eugene Yancey and Junior Tommy Redford as Mrs. O'Brien, Senior English teacher oversees. Mrs. O'Brien's classroom seems to be the congregating place of all those with problems from gerunds to Macbeth.

ABOVE: Learning the art of public speaking takes practice and Earl Acors gets his experience as he gives a three minute prepared speech on "The American vs the National Football League."

Creative Arts Stimulate Talents

LEFT: Shop class is a popular subject of the eighth grade boys. Mr. Lawson is the instructor here who is willing to teach his eager students the tricks of carpentry. This woodworking class is one of many of the courses taught in industrial arts.

RIGHT: Help! Yes, help is always on hand in mechanical drawing class as students strive to help each other under the guidance of their teacher Mrs. Clay. They enjoyed using their ideas and knowledge of drawing in creating polyhedrons to use as decorations for Christmas.

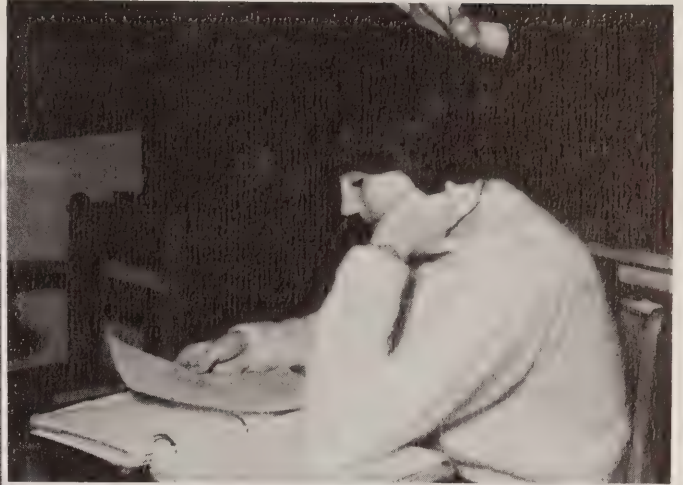

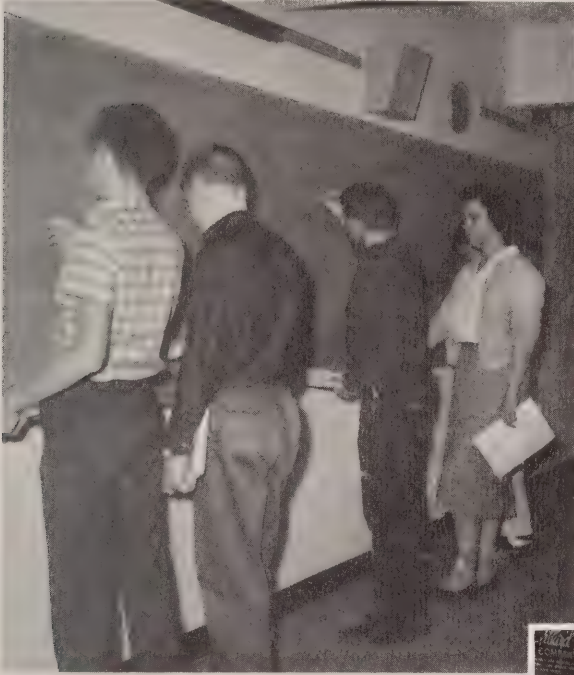

ABOVE: Mr. Mosher looks on approvingly as Karen Thompson completes a mosaic. Mr. Mosher joined the Varina faculty at the beginning of the second semester taking over the positions of art teacher as well as English teacher. Varina is happy to welcome him to the staff.

ABOVE: Suzanne Bynum has her painting materials near by as she paints a still life picture. Brenda Gontkovic seems to be in deep thought over her project.

Modern Math Poses Problem

BELOW: Eighth grade students are quite puzzled over the modern math placed before them this year. Mrs. Ferguson is supervising the work of some industrious students.

Business Dept. Is Active

RIGHT: "Let's see now, where is that W?" Students in Miss French's first year typing class are clanking away as they work on their lessor. Perfection is their goal in spacing, margins, etc. The typists are Diane Blanco, Donald Shinn, Joseph Gontkovic and Walden Maiden.

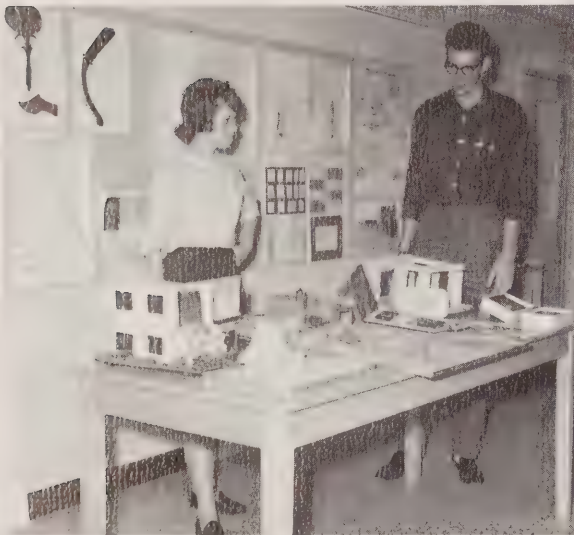

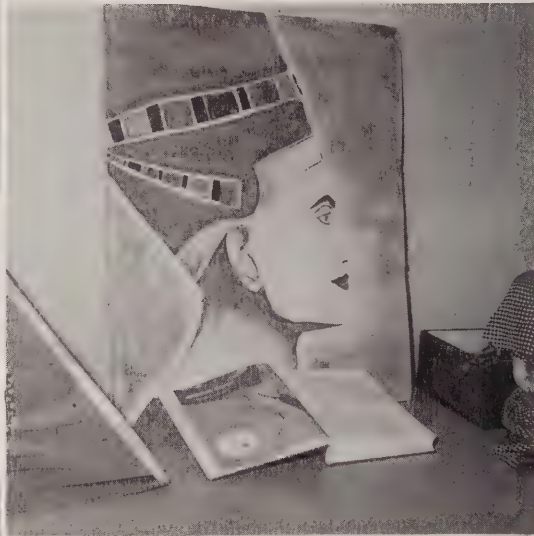

LEFT: Are these the future secretaries of tomorrow? Well, that's for the future to tell. As for now we have seniors musing over their office practice work. Those pictured above are Shirley Jenkins, George Ann Davis, Virginia Bulheller, and Carol Bratcher.

Exhibits Highlight History Study

LEFT: As we round the corner of J building, an interesting display catches our eyes in the room next to Miss Motley's. Various eras in American history are portrayed by articles, contributed by Miss Motley, and the change of costume of a manikin. At one glance you can imagine yourself a part of that period.

RIGHT: A highlight of the World History display was this portrait, a fine example of the Egyptian era.

LEFT: Mrs. Mark's World History class kept itself quite busy this year creating exhibits and displays concerning their studies. Their Egyptian display was open to all students and was a good example of the creative as well as artistic abilities of her pupils. Pictured here are Florence Barlow and Larry Baber who served as two of the guides to visiting students.

RIGHT: Obviously, Defense Attorney Gary Ober is unimpressed by the testimony of Plaintiff, Geoffrey Harton, now on the stand. This scene took place in a courtroom drama portrayed by senior civics students. Judge Bill Northern and Sheriff Jesse Holman look on as Clerk, Patsy Throckmorton records. The jury is seated behind Mr. Ober.

Home Ec Students Keep Busy

LEFT: It's nearing Christmas as Home Ec students make candles to light their homes for the season. Peggy Brown whips up wax as Rita Halterman cautiously holds the pan. This Christmas project was one of many that students participated in. All classes worked diligently completing gifts including yarn octopi and slippers.

RIGHT: Betty Scott and Joyce Bandy work to clean up the kitchen after a cooking session. This kitchen was the familiar meeting place of many students who prepared scrumptious goodies. It was the site of constant hustle and bustle as luncheons were prepared by class members for the enjoyment of Varina's teachers.

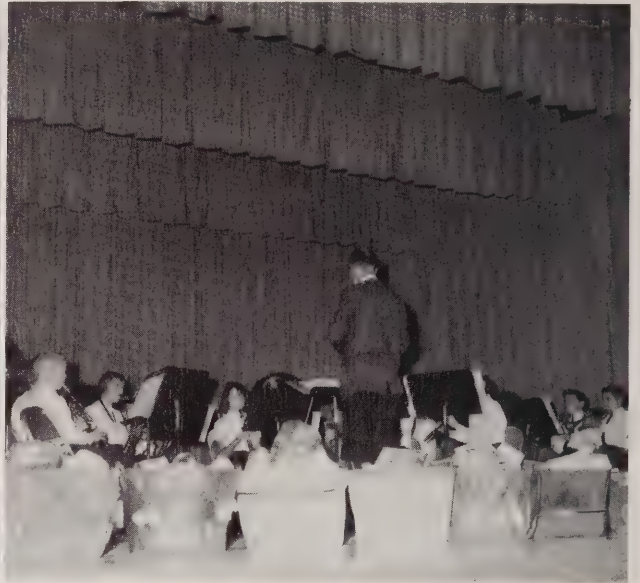

LEFT: Miss Pratt tries to decide which tasty morsel to choose at the teacher's tea held at Christmas-time. A wide array of cookies and punch, all made by Home Ec students, were offered as refreshments. Several pupils served as hostesses.

RIGHT: Nancy Prosser and Beverly Patterson add to the spirit of the Christmas season by decorating a Christmas tree with numerous glittering balls.

Seventh Graders Begin Campus Life

ABOVE; This year the 7th graders have their own band conducted by Mr. Altman. At the Christmas assembly they displayed their talent by performing for Varina students a selection of Christmas numbers. They make a fine addition to our music department.

LEFT: "Merrily we sing along" chants the 7th grade chorus.

BELOW: Miss St. Clair's students listen intently as she conducts her class. This year 7th graders get their first taste of changing classes and seem to be quite enthused over it.

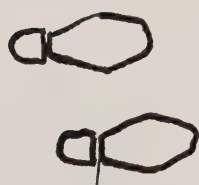

ABOVE: Mrs. Allard's class urges everyone to be sure they have a balanced diet. Kay Lucas, Bernice Farkas, and Ted Grivetti work on a bulletin board denoting the seven basic food groups. This is part of their study in health class.

Varina placed three players on the All-District team. They were Seddon Canfield, Earl Snelson, and Junie Kirby. Those making Honorable Mention were H. E. Ballowe, Johnny Zehler, Glen Holder, Billy Lucado, and Ken Kambis.

Varina also had three players on the All-Opponent Team. These were Earl Snelson, Junie Kirby, and Seddon Canfield. These players were chosen by their opponents while the All-District Team is picked by the Coaches.

In the next to the last game of the season, Varina stomped Meadowbrook 41-0. Glenn Holder scored 3 touchdowns while Junie Kirby, Randy Bottenfield and Walter Green scored one each.

Varsity Cheerleaders

Even before the first pep rally was held the varsity cheerleaders were busy making posters, learning new cheers, and planning uniforms. On the final countdown September 3, they made last minute adjustments to their uniforms and led the school in "Two Bits," a cheer no student forgets.

With this same spirit they led an excited crowd in cheering the teams to a football championship and through an outstanding basketball season.

The team consisted of nine freshmen and four sophomores with a usual starting roster of Russell Hodges, Billy Hodges, Pat Coughlin, Bobby Game, John Zienius, Chris Liles, Gary Jenkins, and Bill Ferguson, captain of the team. One of the highlights of the season was the come-back game with Henrico after having been downed by them once before on their home court. With two minutes to go in the last quarter, and a score of 28-26, Henrico's favor, Billy Hodges made two points tying the score up. Then stealing the ball, he sank two more giving the Devils a final winning score of 30-28.

No time like the present to get in some good hard shooting practice.

Eighth graders put in plenty of practice time. Every afternoon after school you could find them scurrying over to the gym to get dressed and ready for work. Most of their games were played on Saturdays. The team had a good season losing only three games, two to Fairfield and one to Henrico. James Carroll, their chief rebounder and high scorer, has proved to be an invaluable asset to the team. They became champs of the Capital District and played Manchester vieing for the two county titles. With so many victories this season we have great hopes for the best J.V. team in the district next year.

Half-time was highlighted by the crowning of Miss Patricia Throckmorton as 1963-64 Homecoming Queen. Traditional Activities Prove

Each year in February the senior students and sponsors begin to think about the senior play. After the first days of trying out and deciding upon the parts, comes the hectic days of practicing, arranging scenery and costume finding. But finally the big night arrives and all the hard work proves worthwhile. This year's production of "All Shook Up" was about a young girl from a turkey farm who comes to college and gets in with the beatnik clan. Her misadventures prove hilarious.

All of the seniors look forward to the time when they are fitted for their caps and gowns bringing the reality of graduation closer. Johnny Alexander gets measured for his cap as Ann Burks and Dennis Goome wait their turn.

Another routine, but significant task for the seniors is the ordering of their graduation invitations and cards. This also makes them realize their senior year will soon be over. Tommy Howell and Diane Fidler try to make a decision on style of print for their cards.

Exciting for Seniors

Senior Banquet

ABOVE: Meade Ferguson, Miss Motley and Mr. Jack Ferguson, Varina's School Board Representative, leave after a very enjoyable evening.

RIGHT: These Seniors and their dates enjoy steak or seafood dinners, the main attraction of the Banquet.

This year the Senior Banquet was held at Nick's House of Steaks. The guest speaker was Mr. George Moody, Superintendent of Schools. Also attending the Banquet were: Mr. Cashell Donahoe, Assistant Superintendent of Schools; Mr. Jack Ferguson, School Board Representative from Varina; several Senior teachers and their wives and husbands, and office personnel. Preparation for the event entailed a lot of work on the part of Senior officers and sponsors but the result was an evening enjoyed by all.

Girls' — Boys' Staters Anticipate Convention

Randy Bottenfield, Joe Meredith, Argice Glenn, Barbara Hicks and Billy Windle will represent Varina this summer at Girls' and Boys' State. These students are sponsored by the American Legion Post 233, the American Legion Auxiliary, Varina Ruritan, Richmond Heights Ruritan and the Raymond E. Maxis American Legion.

This summer the two Varina Girls' State representatives will travel to Radford and the three Varina Boys' State representatives to William and Mary where they will learn ways one can be a good citizen. They take part in a mock government in which they hold campaigns and rallies, elect officials, and hear speeches from important political figures. After returning to school in the fall these five students will tell during assembly, of the experiences they had and upon hearing these speeches one will know this was a very exciting and enlightening week for them.

Central All State Chorus and Band

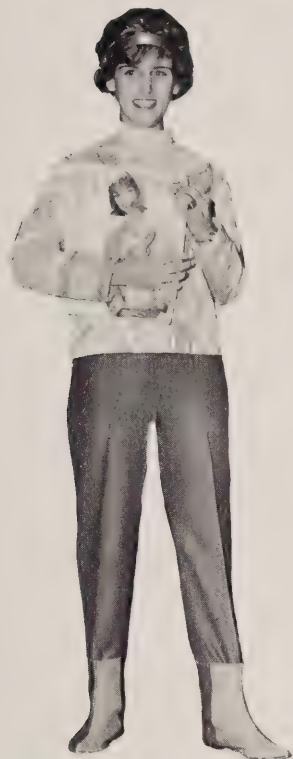

Members of the chorus work hard during the year in hopes of being chosen to represent Varina in All State Chorus. Karen Thompson (not pictured) — 1st soprano, Edith Belvin — 2nd soprano, Craig Ormand — 2nd tenor, and Jerry Schwartz — baritone made the Choir and Pat Ferguson — alto, Ronnie Sue Lacy — alto, and Patty Wagner — soprano were chosen to sing in the Eighth and Ninth Grade Chorus. Mrs. Mansfield, director of the school chorus, accompanied these students to RPI on February 14-16 where they practiced for two days and performed their concert for the public on Sunday.

Varina was represented by six this year in the All State Band. Roy K. Props was the only one to make the Concert Band. He displayed his talent by playing the tuba. Nancy Johnson, Jackie Turner, Betty Childress and Herbert Owen, all playing the clarinet, and Donald Dean on the trumpet were selected to play in the Workshop Band. At J. R. Tucker High School, the first weekend in February, they met and practiced with other Central All Staters and gave their public performance on Sunday, February 2.

Thalhimer's

Each year students from all area schools are chosen by some of the larger department stores for modeling. This year Varina's representatives were Rita Fuller from the Thalhimer's Deb Council, and George Ann Davis and Seddon Canfield from the Miller & Rhoads Teen Board. Each maintains good grades and is chosen because of his poise and charm. Although their main function is that of showing off the latest teen fashions, they are offered many opportunities to improve and broaden themselves. Through their association with other teens from other schools, their work in the store as models, and their participation in store-community projects such as the annual Miller & Rhoads Santa Train, they are able to meet many new people from all over the city. In addition to this they learn coordination and gain valuable experience in facing the public.

The Student Cooperative Association is the governing body and leads the activities of the students. Various committees comprised of students make money for the school, build up school spirit, and set an example for other students to follow. Each year new officers are elected and homeroom representatives are chosen from all the homerooms. This year the S.C.A. sponsored many projects. Some of them were the Homecoming game and festivities, Christmas baskets, and all of our school assemblies.

Annual Staff Struggles to Meet Deadlines

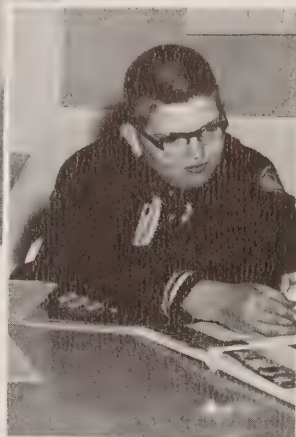

"To whom is the Varinian dedicated?" or "When will the yearbook come out?" were familiar questions addressed to the members of the Varinian staff. "Can't tell, that's a secret!" was a usual reply, as staff members hurried off to get one last page completed or a last minute caption written.

The annual staff gazes on quite engrossed in the picture which Lydia Powers and Reva White are discussing. Last minute work found its members keeping late hours to meet that final deadline. But these diligent workers came through! SEATED: Richard Nunnally, Business Manager; Lydia Powers, Editor; Reva White, Asst. Editor; Chris Liles; Brenda Groome, 8th Grade Editor. STANDING: Mary Lou Boykin, Academic Editor; Charlie Baker, Art Editor; Linda Banton, 7th Grade Editor; Susan Liles, Organizations and Feature Editor.

A large number of Varina students show their concern for others by volunteering to help in the Junior Red Cross. Each homeroom can have as many representatives as it wishes. This year they worked in the different stations at Henrico business establishments on Teen Saturday taking up money for the March of Dimes. One week-end the volunteers walked from door-to-door in the Varina area with a sign on their lapel that may have been confusing until you knew that "Tonight I am a Mother" meant they were helping in the annual Mothers' March of Dimes Drive.

Sponsor Mrs. Mabel Marks and Chairman Sandy Williams discuss with members of the Red Cross plans for Mothers' March of Dimes.

Performances at all football games, many of the pep rallies, the Christmas Toy Parade and its annual concerts kept the Varina High School Band "on its toes" through December. With winter growing shorter, the band members found themselves trying out for All-State Band (for which 6 were chosen), working on spring parades and the annual band festival. A picnic in early June completed a long list of activities for the band.

Band members, under the direction of Mr. Altman, are still enjoying their practice sessions in the new sound proof room.
